EXPERIENCE

Caroline W. Early focuses her practice on representing clients in insurance coverage litigation arising under a variety of policies and advocating for them in regulatory matters. While attending the Wake Forest University School of Law, she was executive editor of the Wake Forest Law Review and served as a law clerk in the office of Kentucky Attorney General Daniel Cameron. Caroline's experience also includes working as a legal intern for the Alliance Defending Freedom. Before beginning law school, Caroline worked in nonprofit fundraising.
