EXPERIENCE

Jessica Saad represents a diverse array of manufacturers, suppliers, and other entities in complex toxic tort and environmental litigation, with a particular focus on defending asbestos-related claims. She is actively involved in all phases of litigation, including conducting depositions, drafting and arguing dispositive motions, managing discovery, preparing for trial, and participating in settlement negotiations. Her hands-on approach and attention to detail help ensure efficient case management and strong advocacy for her clients.

In addition to her litigation practice, Jessica contributes to the legal community as an editor of Goldberg Segalla's nationally recognized Asbestos Case Tracker blog. The blog has earned accolades including placement on the ABA Journal's prestigious Blawg 100 and recognition as the Best Litigation Blog by the Expert Institute.

While earning her J.D. at the Rutgers School of Law, Jessica gained valuable experience as a summer judicial intern with the Hon. Michael Toto in the New Jersey Superior Court, Criminal Division. She also served as a legal intern in the Middlesex County Prosecutor's Office.
