EXPERIENCE

Kevin G. Zhang focuses his practice on counseling clients in complex commercial litigation and business disputes ranging from real estate matters to contractual and intellectual property disputes. He is engaged in every stage of the litigation process, including drafting pleadings and motions, conducting discovery and depositions, and assisting with trial preparation. Kevin has represented both businesses and individuals in litigation matters throughout the New York metropolitan area, regularly advising clients on litigation strategy and case development, and helping them navigate disputes efficiently while advancing their business objectives.
