EXPERIENCE

Marc A. Deitch is an accomplished civil litigator who defends trucking companies, transportation network companies, and motor carriers in transportation, product liability, motor vehicle negligence, and personal injury litigation. Marc is an active trial attorney who has tried more than 50 jury trials in state and federal courts throughout New Jersey and New York. He has over 20 years of experience defending individual and corporate clients against complex claims for personal injuries involving wrongful death, quadriplegia, cervical and lumbar injuries, traumatic brain injuries, and complex fractures. He also has extensive experience handling UM/UIM, premises liability, dram shop, construction defects, and insurance coverage matters.

EXPERIENCE HIGHLIGHTS

Transportation

- Obtained summary judgment in favor of a provider of on-site fleet maintenance when the court agreed none of the parties had produced evidence to indicate that an alleged defective condition on a rental vehicle existed at the time of the last preventative maintenance service by the defendant
- Obtained summary judgment in a personal injury lawsuit due to lack of proximate causation for a firefighter's back injury he sustained while shoveling sand that spilled onto the roadway from overturned trucks involved in a motor vehicle accident
- Received a no cause jury verdict on behalf of a tractor-trailer owner after an accident with an automobile where the plaintiff alleged receiving injuries that exacerbated his MS
- Obtained summary judgment based on the lack of agency between a transport company and the driver of a tractor-trailer involved in an automobile accident
