EXPERIENCE

Matthew S. Marrone is vice chair of the firm's Management and Professional Liability practice group. He has defended hundreds of lawyers, insurance agents and brokers, and other professionals in malpractice and related litigation, and often represents these same professionals in ethics investigations and disciplinary proceedings. Matt has extensive complex jury trial experience, some involving exposures in excess of $25 million. He is licensed and actively practices throughout all state and federal courts of both Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Matt is the current chair of the Mid-Atlantic Chapter of the Professional Liability Underwriting Society (PLUS), and is also active in the Professional Liability Defense Federation (PLDF). He is a past chair of the professional liability committee of the Defense Research Institute (DRI) where, under his leadership, the committee organized and produced its first-ever national professional liability seminar, which remains an annual marquee industry event to this day. Matt frequently writes and speaks before national and regional audiences on topics important to his clients.

Matt encourages his clients to view him as a trusted resource for their businesses, practices, or legal decision-making. By zealously advocating for his clients, providing them with relevant education, and recognizing the overall importance of cost efficiency in legal representation, Matt strives to ensure his clients receive excellent value from the services he provides.

EXPERIENCE HIGHLIGHTS

Management and Professional Liability

In 2018, Matt scored significant victories in three legal malpractice cases in New Jersey, a notoriously difficult place to defend attorneys in legal malpractice cases—victories that helped even the playing field for defendants:

- In the Superior Court of Morris County, Matt secured a jury verdict in the case of Equity Now v. Hosbach—one that was notable because his client, before the trial, was found negligent as a matter of law.
- In a case that received national and regional coverage from Law360 and the New Jersey Law Journal, Matt convinced an appeals court to affirm the entry of summary judgment he previously secured for his client in the Superior Court of Atlantic County in the case of Sheppard v. Perskie. In that case, the plaintiff argued that Matt's client should be liable under a novel theory of "negligent attorney referral," which had not previously been recognized in New Jersey.
- In a ruling expected to help define what constitutes a viable legal-malpractice claim in New Jersey, a state Superior Court judge granted a motion for summary judgment by defense team of Matt and fellow Goldberg Segalla partner Seth L. Laver. The judge's ruling led to the dismissal of a claim against a lawyer being sued for negligence by a woman he once represented in a contentious divorce. The decision saved our client as much as $500,000—the amount of the plaintiff's demand based on her trucker ex-husband's income, which fluctuated between $25,000 and $85,000 annually. It also saved our client the uncertainty and stress of a trial, which was fast approaching as Seth and Matt sought to have the case dismissed based on evidence already presented.
