ASSOCIATE

EXPERIENCE

Miranda C. Kahn represents businesses in complex litigation matters, drawing on experience in both civil and criminal proceedings. Her practice includes all phases of litigation, from case assessment and investigation through discovery, motion practice, settlement negotiations, and trial.

Before joining Goldberg Segalla, Miranda defended clients in complex state and federal litigation involving catastrophic injury, wrongful death, construction, premises liability, employment, and constitutional law claims. She also prosecuted and defended complex securities litigation and white-collar criminal cases, and served as the second-seat attorney in a three-week wire and bank fraud trial in the Southern District of New York. Miranda began her career as an assistant district attorney in Westchester County, where she managed all aspects of criminal prosecutions, including investigations, motion practice, witness preparation, plea negotiations, hearings, and trials.
