PRACTICES

Defense Base Act and War Hazards Compensation Act

Paul Miletic

PARTNER

EXPERIENCE

An advocate for government contractors and their insurance carriers, Paul Miletic advises and defends his clients in cases involving the Defense Base Act extension of the Longshore and Harbor Workers Compensation Act, which requires government contractors to provide workers' compensation coverage for civilian employees working overseas. His experience representing clients before U.S. Department of Labor judicial and administrative tribunals makes Paul particularly effective at providing efficient case management and favorable results.

Skilled at resolving complex matters, Paul's practice has also included representing clients in insurance coverage issues, coverage litigation, and commercial litigation. His experience extends to claims involving general commercial liability, professional liability and property liability insurance policies.

Paul is regularly recognized by Super Lawyers for his business litigation experience. As one of a small number of attorneys chosen for this honor, Paul has been recognized by his peers and singled out for his professional achievements.
