EXPERIENCE

Yurie Blons dedicates her practice to workers' compensation law, counseling and defending insurers, employers, and third-party administrators in workers' compensation matters. She handles all phases of the claims process, including conducting depositions, preparing and arguing motions, analyzing medical records, and negotiating favorable settlements.

Prior to joining Goldberg Segalla, Yurie practiced immigration law, where she conducted detailed legal assessments and case viability analyses to shape effective legal strategies. She has also helped pass litigation and authored critical filings and supporting documentation, distilling complex factual records into clear, persuasive narratives—skills that she uses to enhance her advocacy in workers' compensation litigation.
